

FREE KINDERGARTEN.

Address by the President, Ex-Mayor Peck - Interesting Report by Miss Livermore and Mrs. Cogswell.

The annual meeting of the Elm City Free Kindergarten association held this week was of more than usual interest. It is not generally known that a kindergarten and normal training school are conducted on Oak street, where 125 of the poorest children of the city have during the past year received very best of instruction. These are for the most part children whose home training is either entirely neglected or is of such a character as to start them in the wrong way of life. It is a difficult matter to straighten a crooked man up, but it is comparatively easy to start him so that he will stay straight if he is taken in hand soon enough. The free kindergarten movement is for the purpose of giving these neglected children the same chance of life, as far as is possible, as those born into a more favored condition. It is believed that this system, successfully carried out, will result in good citizenship for this part of the coming generation, instead of the usual quota of loafers and jailbirds.

Believing that this subject will prove of deep interest we give the address of the president, Hon. Henry F. Peck, also those of the corresponding secretary, Miss M. C. Livermore, and Mrs. F. H. Cogswell of the visiting committee.

EX-MAYOR PECK'S ADDRESS.

The question is often asked why there are so many charitable organizations in our city. Why not concentrate our efforts on such as claim our greatest attention, and drop out the lesser? But who shall say which is the lesser? What right has your organization to live? Do not our public schools include kindergarten work? Yes, but we take those children who are not old enough and those who are old enough, yet not found in the public schools, but are on the streets because the public schools cannot accommodate all of school age. Then this organization does a large amount of mission work in families of those whose children attend the school.

The citizens of San Francisco, where more has been done in this line than in any city in the union, look upon the work as a question of political economy. Does it not cost less to mould the mind of the child in kindergartens, training them to become useful citizens than to build reformatories, jails and almshouses to receive them because of a lack of the training in childhood?

In a recent paper prepared by C. L. Brace and read before the Children's Aid association of New York, he said: "The sociological problems of New York are especially complex, the reason of the ignorance and helplessness of the great numbers of immigrants from Europe who throw into certain quarters of the city. Each ward presents different problems, and as the number of these people increases the struggle of life becomes more intense. The breaking of the home ties with the mother country has a bad moral effect. They find the police less strict, the wealth about them far greater and the boys are learning that it is possible to live by their wits. The public schools do not meet this problem. It is not grammar schools with aristocratic courses of study turning out boys and girls fitted for nothing but shop clerks that we most need; it is the kindergarten and the primary school, with good play grounds around them, that we must have at frequent intervals in the tenement districts with bodies of intelligent trustees who are interested in the individual children, and after this is done we should have trade schools for the older boys and girls. Mr. Brace declared that tenement house life under proper conditions is not in itself necessarily degrading. If the regulations of the board of health are energetically enforced, with sufficient schools, where the children will receive painstaking attention, with reading rooms and libraries in school basements for the people in winter and parks for recreation in summer, with play grounds at every school which the children may use the year round under proper supervision, and with the kindly influence of the churches and benevolent societies as at present, the people of the tenements, as a rule, are honest and virtuous, and all they need is a chance to rise."

One of the active ladies of this association prepared a paper to be brought before the chamber of commerce, but it being near the time of the discontinuance of the meetings preceding the summer vacation it was not presented. I take the liberty of reading it here.

Referring to the annual report of the president of the C. of C. of the city of New Haven for 1893, the honorable president of that body draws the attention of its members to the beautiful natural surroundings of the city, points with pride to the educational advantages, the various manufacturing interests, and the several charitable institutions, and concludes with begging that all endeavor to make New Haven homes as famous as possible and that all stand by the town.

In December, 1893, New Haven added to its educational institutions a charity which if rightly understood and heartily supported will slowly but surely help to make industrious, virtuous and honorable citizens who will one day stand by our town, and bring credit to its name. This institution lays the foundation for industrial education, puts great emphasis upon moral culture and character building, and trains directly towards honorable citizenship. It recognizes that if it would increase the prosperity of our city, if we would have honest, law abiding, patriotic citizens we must educate the young to respect labor, to recognize and respect the rights and property of others and to acquire habits of industry.

MISS LIVERMORE'S REPORT.

You have listened to our treasurer's report of money received from association fees, from the contributions of friends in sympathy with our work, though not members of the association, and from "donations."

These donations have come from various sources, and for all we would like to make public acknowledgment. The old adage that "A penny saved is a penny earned" is true in our case as in all others, and therefore our hearty thanks are first of all due to our good friends of the Church of the Redeemer, who have saved us such a host of pennies by cordially opening the doors of Welcome hall to us from the beginning of our work.

Since our last annual meeting we have been remembered by the Sunday schools of various churches. From the United Church Sunday school we received last November $25. From the Welcome hall Sunday school (mission to mission), $11.48. From the infant class of Trinity M. E. church, $2.41.

Center church Sunday school gave us a generous Christmas offering, $34.15. Bethany mission gave us $15 and English Hall, toward the milk fund, to which so many private individuals have gladly contributed, $5. And from a Sunday school in Orange, $2.50.

The primary class of Dwight Place church have sent money, flowers and toys. Then there have come to us many so-called "little gifts," but if the donors could see the pleasure they have given to the children, or the help they have been to the workers, according to the nature of the gift, they would realize that nothing is "little" that helps. As for instance, the box of assorted cakes for the children's excursions from the New York Biscuit company. Were ever cakes sweeter?

For various useful articles that must have been bought if not contributed we have to thank the following firms: J. W. Everett, Cox & Lyon, Warren A. Spaulding, Henry F. Peck, C. F. Beckley, Elm City Manufacturing company, Bishop's Book and Paste company, and F. M. Brown & Co.

King's Daughters and Daughters of the King and Band of Hope, they have paid for attendant's services, have hemmed towels, made aprons, bought mittens, dressed dolls, etc.

School children have helped. Fruit from the Welch kindergarten enriched the Oak street Thanksgiving feast. Private kindergartens have helped with warm clothing, books, toys, dolls, very dear to the hearts of the little givers. They would be rewarded if they could see how lovingly the dolls are tended by their new owners.

And then comes a list of many kind friends who have sent grapes, pears, apples, oranges, flowers. Do you know how those children love flowers, toys, pictures, books, clothing, shoes, rubbers, cards, and last, but by no means least, visits?

A new year is before us and we shall need a new list. Visit the kindergarten and your heart will prompt the rest.

MRS. COGSWELL'S REPORT.

It would be a good thing if the members of the E. C. K. A. should consider themselves a visiting committee—good for the kindergarten and good for the members.

Our committee take pleasure in our visits and get good from them. The ingenuity and patience of the teachers give us renewed courage for our own individual work.

Each month we have seen improvement in the children. This last month the clean faces of the children and reasonably clean clothing were the first noticeable thing, and attentive faces and good behavior next.

You will remember at your last annual meeting we discussed the incorrigible Charles. There are no Charles of that kind there now, but attentive, well behaved children. Miss King said there is little need to discipline and the attendance is good. Last year we were troubled because the Jewish children did not come. Last Thursday I counted twenty Jewish names on Miss King's register.

We found in the first year that for some cause the children were stupid and inactive and wondered and worked at it. At last Miss Remington suggested that a lack of breakfast or proper breakfast—it might be coffee—was not sharpening the children's wits; so last year we tried giving each a cup of milk in addition to the cracker furnished by the association. Miss King put the lunch early in the session and work went much better. The friends who gave Mr. Mossman the money to pay the milk bills would be gratified to see the change it made and the good it did the little ones.

Delightful festivals have been held at Thanksgiving and Christmas. The children have, of course, done their work and simple treats and gifts have been sent to them. All days, such as Washington's birthday and East-er, have been appropriately noticed. The children's eyes shine and they are so eagerly attentive and so absorbed in their work that for the time all the troubles of their meagre existence are forgotten and I do believe they are happier by contrast than the darlings of our own homes and private kindergartens ever dream of being. Their little treats and gifts and promises make a paradise for them, and the wise and gentle training given by these sweet voiced women cannot fail to have a lasting influence for good and make a lifelong remembrance.

We have, too, a class of bright girls training for kindergartens. One of our last year's class is now teaching in a public and one in a private kindergarten. It is to be regretted that the junior class numbers only one. There is going to be a dearth of workers next year. It is certainly true if these cases could be put in all the thickly populated districts of New Haven, they would be productive of great good. We are impressed every time we go to that room that this work is at one end of the line to present what the prisons and reformatories are working at the other end to correct.

THE FLEETING SHOW.

Han Bell's "A Little Sister to the Wilderness," William Black's "A Beautiful Wretch," and if E. E. Hale's "A Man Without a Country," Wm. Henry Shelton's "A Man Without a Memory," and so almost equally unimportant.

Very startling facts about many authors are thus revealed. We learn that Margaret Benson's "Subject to Fortify," that Mary Catherine Lee's "A Soulless Singer," and that Maarten Maarten's "An Old Maid's Love," Violet Hunt's "A Hard Woman," Mary E. Wilkins' "A New England Nun," while Florence Warden's "The Bewitched," Mrs. Edward Kenard's "Fooled by a Woman," Rosa N. Carey's "Not Like Other Girls," and Hall Caine's "The Scapgoat." A New Haven professor, Dr. E. W. Scripture's "Thinking, Feeling, Doing," continuously, but Hartford's poet and lecturer, Richard Burton's "Dumb in June." Well, perhaps a man who can talk fluently and instructively eleven-twelfths of the year would not be adverse to a month of speechlessness.

The possible humors of this style of advertising being sufficiently set forth, it is now in order for those who have been interested in these examples to add to the list. It will not be difficult, and will afford not a little amusement. Strange that there should be such a difference between an 's' and an 'ss,' very much more than the famous "twiddle-dum and twiddle-dee."

A DEFICIENT IDEAL. The man who, in 1761, wrote an article on the "Qualifications of a Wife," which article was published in the Worcester (England) Journal, seems to have founded his ideal upon deficiencies rather than upon positive qualities. Perhaps he feared that he might, in spite of himself, marry a woman altogether "too bright and good for (his own) human nature's daily food." Or perhaps he only feared that she might be too bright for him, in the sense of being too wise and witty. These are the qualifications upon which he insisted:

"In spelling a little becoming deficiency, and in the punctuation (or what is generally called stopping) by no means conversant." The explanation in parenthesis is kindly meant. His ideal could hardly be expected to understand the meaning of "punctuation." "In conversation a little of the lisp, but not of the stammer. Or a decent share of common sense, just seasoned with a little repartee—a small modicum of wit, but no learning; no learning, I say again and again (either ancient or modern) upon any consideration whatever. A good person, but not perfectly beautiful—a moderate height—complexion not quite fair, but a little brown. Great good nature, and a prudent generosity." And more to the same effect.

Did he ever find this paragon of negatives? And if so, did he never weary of her lisp, and her small modicum of wit in conversation? Or did he unkindly find the deficient spelling and incorrect "stopping" of her letters? Or did he ever wish that she had more than a "decent," by which he meant moderate, share of common sense? Or did he ever refuse to smile at her little repartee? If he did none of these things, but loved her to her dying day for her "great good nature and prudent generosity," he must have been a man with more than a decent share of common sense and a faithfulness to an ideal that is positively phenomenal. But the truth is probably, that when he found her he married—somebody else.
